Pacific College Commencement.

RECEPTION TO THE SENIORS.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s started the ball rolling in the way of Commencement events by jointly giving a reception to the Seniors. It was given on Thursday evening. Examinations were finished Thursday afternoon, so that all thought of studies could be put aside and a thoroughly good time enjoyed. The reception was given in the college building. The hallway and Miss Macy's and Prof. Kelsey's rooms were beautifully decorated with evergreens and roses. Cushions and rugs were in evidence to make the reception rooms as cozy and comfortable in appearance as a parlor.

was rendered. Lewis Saunders read an original story, which was well written in his ready style, and was enjoyed by all. Aubrey Kramien recited James Whitcomb Riley's poem, entitled "Deer Creek's Good Enough For Me." President McGrew delivered a short discourse on the work of the past year, reviewing the points of interest and importance in the different phases of the school work.

Delightful refreshments were served in one of the rooms, which was decorated until it was as fragrant and as fresh as a garden. This reception was the closing social event of the school year.

CALVIN BLAIR.

The faculty and all the students were present, and several members of the Alumni and members of the Board, and a few others who had been invited.

Games were provided, and piano music added to the merriment. A short literary program

ADDRESS TO THE LITERARY SOCIETIES.

The address to the literary societies was delivered in the college chapel Friday evening by Dr. E. T. Allen of Portland. It consisted of a lecture on the land and people of Persia. This was illustrated by means of the college stereopticon and photographs.

Dr. Allen has traveled extensively in Persia as a missionary, and being a fluent speaker, he was enabled to take his audience with him and give them a glimpse of that far country. The program was opened with a solo by Miss Bertha Cox, which was well rendered.

The map of Persia was then thrown on the screen. Dr. Allen opened his lecture by referring to that country as the cradle of the human race, and invited his hearers to take a journey with him to the scene of their birthplace. Views were then shown and explained of crumbling ruins and massive walls, covered with sculptures of flying bulls or carvings representing the triumphs of mighty kings.

After briefly reviewing the history of this wonderful land, he spoke of the great changes which have taken place. Persia at one time ruled the world. Now it is a little state, of whose very existence we are scarcely aware. At one time it was the center of the civilization. Today the people are practically where they were two thousand years ago. Mohammedanism stretches over the land like a blight, withering every impulse toward progress and improvement.

One of the most interesting features of the lecture was the imitation of the cries of the street venders, and the songs and dirges which are chanted in the great parades. The discourse was a revelation to many, who did not realize the conditions existing in out-of-the-way corners of this old world. Many a time was a feeling of thankfulness expressed after the lecture that fate had placed us in this enlightened land.

COLLEGE-ALUMNI BALL GAME.

A new athletic feature was introduced into Commencement week this year, in the way of a baseball game between the college and alumni. The first annual game was played Saturday afternoon, and though the score ran up, the contest was interesting and close and was not devoid of excitement and some good playing. The college boys won by a score of 23 to 20. The players were as follows:

Alumni.	College.
Metcalf, '00.....c.....	Morris
Wilson, '97.....p.....	Kramlen
Edwards, '96.....1b.....	M. Blair
Woodward, '98.....2b.....	Maris
Jones, '02.....3b.....	Parker
Stanbrough, '93.....ss.....	C. Blair
Pickett, '00.....rf.....	Coulson
C. Kirk, '01.....cf.....	R. Pemberton
R. Kirk, '98.....lf.....	W. Pemberton

THE GYMNASTIC DRILLS.

The gymnastic drills by the Physical Training Department were held on the girls' tennis court Saturday evening. The music was rendered by Mrs. C. B. Wilson. It was an inspiring sight as the large class of girls marched onto the court, carrying dumb bells and formed in eights, facing front, every line straight and every head erect. At the word of command they marched to the edge of the court; then forming in two columns of fours, moving in opposite directions, executed a very complicated march. Then separating, the ladies began to manipulate their dumb bells. This drill continued for some time, and every movement, as they passed through the different evolutions, showed careful training on the part of the instructor, Miss Britt, and hard and persistent work on the part of the girls. After a short rest the girls again marched forward, this time armed with Indian clubs. In the long and difficult drill which followed, the girls displayed great dexterity in the use of those weapons, so useful in the struggle for a healthy body and a clear mind.

After this came a club drill by the boys' class, followed by a beautifully executed Delsarte drill by the girls. The drills proved what has been accomplished in the Physical Training Department of Pacific College and reflected great credit on the instructor, Miss Britt.

CLASS DAY.

The college chapel has been filled many times, but it has never been packed as it was Saturday evening, when the class day exercises were given. The program was opened with a "musical spasm" by the entire class, a medley which lacked nothing but tune and terminal facilities. A poem of merit was read by the class poetess, Miss Ethel Heater. Curt Parker, announced as the "Macaroni" of the Pacific Coast, gave a mock exhibition of wireless telegraphy, and succeeded in ringing the cow-bell. This was a good "take off" on Prof. Albertson, of the science department, which was highly appreciated. Chas. Davidson, garbed as Father Time, turned the wheel of fate and ground out the destinies of the class, or rather the members themselves busily engaged in their future occupations. Miss Agnes Hammer and Miss Heater impersonated Miss Britt and the novice, respectively, in a lesson with Indian clubs. Reubenstein Maris and Paderewski Parker punished the piano with an instrumental duett. The last part of the evening's entertainment was the presentation of Prof. Kelsey's first night out with his concert company, the scene being laid at the "Skunkholler" opera house, admission fifteen cents, with a collection taken up before the audience was released. Maris posed as impersonator Knox, Coulson, Davidson and Dailey making up the rest of the quartette, the other members of the class serving as an appreciative audience. A stereopticon entertainment followed, many scenes from college life being thrown on the canvas. The numbers of the program were interspersed with "New York and Paris" brand of music via phonograph. A class song terminated the fun of the evening.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICES.

A fine audience filled the Friends church Sunday morning and listened to an eloquent sermon by President McGrew upon the theme of indebtedness. In the first of his discourse he traced the debt of our present day civilization to that of the past, to the heroes of the vanguard of progress, throughout history, who moulded their times. The story of our indebtedness to those who have gone before us is a long one, and we are unconscious of the obligation resting upon us. It is an inestimable inheritance. Sweet are the possibilities of culture, but they have been wrought with much labor. The pierced hand of Christ pointed out to Paul his great debt. He acknowledged it and spent his life in its payment. That hand still points to the perishing today and calls to you and me the remembrance of our debt. Don't wait. Begin paying that which you owe now. The world needs the message of faith and love and hope.

President McGrew recalled to the students before him the more personal debt they owed to parents and to those who had made their education possible. He urged them to invest themselves to meet their obligations. The speaker painted a beautiful word picture of the glories of majestic Mt. Hood and of the resources of field and wood and the mount of eternal snows pays its indebtedness to nature and the comforts of mankind, so he urged his young hearers to realize their obligation as from above and to pour out through life their blessings upon a needy world. "Give the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

ADDRESS TO THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

It was with much pleasure that the young people, especially the older students, listened to the earnest, inspiring words of Prof. C. E. Lewis Sunday evening, when he delivered the annual address to the Christian associations of Pacific College. He took for his text the words, "I will surely buy it of thee, for I will not make an offering to the Lord my God which costeth me nothing." The value of an offering is in its cost. The widow gave her mite, but it was also her all, and it typified the true offering. Such an offering means much. Too many harvests are so scanty, there is little that can be given. To the young people he said: An offering of pure, clean lives means a putting away of the dross. A true life must be strong as well as pure, and the strong life must be carved in virtue. Bring an offering rich in knowledge and in knowledge of God, and rich in sympathy and love. The call for service and offering comes from scenes of disaster and devastation, from corrupted cities, from industrial strife, from the sinning ones and those living handicapped lives. I have no sympathy with the cry that the world is growing worse. We are growing toward the light. God's world is full of need, but when the college young people bring to the Lord their offering of young lives, pure, strong, rich and sympathetic, the needs of the world will be met.

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF THE ACADEMY.

The graduating exercises of the Senior Academy Class were held in the Friends church Tuesday afternoon. There were fifteen graduates, as follows: Beatrice Bates, Carrie Nevitt, Everett Heacock, Roy Bates, Ruth Wiley, John Dunham, Ethel Cook, Roscoe Cahill, Phil Rinehart, Shurl Pearson, Zella Hall, Walter Spaulding, Mabelle Gardner, Huber Haworth and William Batty. Owing to the size of the class it was impossible for all to speak, and it was decided by lot who the fortunate ones should be. Eight names were drawn. The program was carried out as follows:

Invocation.....	Rev. Gould.
Instrumental solo.....	Miss Gertrude Brewer.
Oration.....	"William Lloyd Garrison" Will Batty.
Oration.....	"The Miracles of Friendship" Beatrice Bates.
Oration.....	"Frances Willard" Huber Hayworth.
Vocal solo.....	Mrs. O. K. Edwards.
Oration.....	"The Red Men" Shurl Pearson.
Oration.....	"Sarah Judson" Zella Hall.
Oration.....	"Abraham Lincoln" Philip Rinehart.
Vocal duet.....	Prof. and Mrs. Albertson.

Oration.....	"Marcus Whitman" Walter Spaulding.
Oration.....	"James A. Garfield" Mabelle Gardner.
Vocal solo.....	Emmer Newby.
Class address.....	Prof. R. W. Kelsey.
Presentation of diplomas by Miss Macy.
Instrumental solo.....	Miss Gertrude Brewer.
Benediction.....	President McGrew.

The orations were all very good, both in composition and delivery, the speakers reflecting great credit upon themselves and their instructors. When we consider that the orators were chosen at random and represent the average of the whole class, we can not help but expect great things from the class of '07 in the next four years.

The rousing address of Prof. Kelsey was one calculated to stimulate the ambition of every student. His theme was the two great ideals and necessities of life today, "A trained mind and a true heart." L. L. S.

THE ALUMNI ANNUAL RECITAL.

The annual public meeting of the Alumni was held Monday evening in the Friends church before a large audience.

The music of the evening was of unusual quality. The piano duet required great skill, and was rendered in an admirable manner.

Miss Brewer's playing was it can do. The world is established worthy of her reputation, and she was given an enthusiastic reception. Mrs. Florence E. Moore's young person who goes through college without having obtained a love for good books, an appreciation of the beautiful and a thirst for truth, will never grasp the meaning of life. Colleges don't manufacture brains; they develop them. The world expects the college to grind out a uniform product from all kinds of material. Education is a matter of desire, not of machinery. Education may not bring wealth, but it will bring fullness of life.

The Alumni had expected G. T. Tolson, '97, to give an address, but as he could not be present, Mr. Pickett was put in as the emergency man, and with a splendid paper upon "The National Problem," he redeemed the situation.

W. C. Woodward, president of the Alumni, read an interesting paper on the theme, "Does a College Education Pay?" "The college graduate is judged by the business world from a mercenary standard, and his success rated by the dollars he coins. The graduate with ideals which he wishes to put in practice is often turned down as impractical. The result is mutual disappointment; the world becomes cynical and the graduate discouraged. Abilities differ and many must occupy humble positions. And here is the field of needed service, a call for one and two-talent characters who will put their treasures in circulation about them. Success is not measured by rank, but by faithfulness. Be ambitious, strive hard, be all you can be, but don't sulk because you can't be what the other fellow can. Be something besides a machine; be a man. If you can't be great, be true."

Mr. Pickett centered the government question in the government of the municipality. He said that upon the way the Public franchises should be disposed of to the highest responsible bidder. Anything like value depends our existence as a nation. No political party can adjust the problem, for most of them are non-political. Many of the moral reforms are needed because of the failure of our municipal governments. There is no reason why, with time and a little patience, American municipal government should not be brought abreast of other governmental institutions. The reason for the slow growth of municipal government is that the framers of the Constitution were dealing with settling a new country and not with congested cities. The function of the municipality needs revision. The state government should exercise all the fundamental rights of government, while the responsible governing body of a city should be the municipal legislature. Members of a municipal legislature do not represent diverse interests. Every member of a municipal legislature should be elected by the city as a whole. Another step toward improvement is the segregation of municipal elections from politics.

CALVIN BLAIR.

COMMENCEMENT.

An unusually large audience was present Tuesday morning at the regular Commencement exercises. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with maiden hair ferns and pink roses.

The program began with a well rendered piano solo by Mrs. Albertson, the other music of the morning consisting of two vocal numbers by Stuart McGuire of Portland, a young man of marked ability as a soloist.

The class oration was very ably delivered by D. Dwight Coulson. He traced graphically our national progress and discussed the debt of our new civilization to that of the old world, particularly to our new dependencies. The fields before us are not for victories of conquest, but of culture. Our future victories must not be over our brother, but with him. A complete man must be trained spiritually. The speaker closed with an earnest appeal for support of the denominational college, the earnest, enthusiastic spirit of which cannot be transferred to cold print.

Dr. Alexander Blackburn delivered an impressive and masterful address upon "The Place of the Denominational College in our Educational System."

The problem of humanity is educational from the cradle on through life, and the speaker, while not deprecating the work of state institutions, showed up the importance of the denominational college as doing a work peculiar to itself. The churches need such schools as educational centers, which will unify and cement their general interests. Denominational schools furnish fields for valuable service for some of our best educators, who would not be known or found in state institutions. The tendency of the church school is not so much toward specialization. It's a mistake to specialize too early. The supreme function of a college is to make a MAN, not a machine. The great problem of the young person is to find himself, and the church school cultivates thatfulness of life which assists in this great purpose. The com-

President McGrew made a few timely remarks to the class, the keynote of which was, "Go not to receive what the world owes you, but to give what you owe the world." He then conferred the degrees as follows: The degree of B. S. upon Clarence Dailey, Chas. Davidson, Agnes Hammer, Owen Maris and Curt Parker; the degree of A. B. upon Dwight Coulson, Lucy Gause and Ethel Heater.

ALUMNI BUSINESS MEETING AND BANQUET.

On Tuesday afternoon the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association was held, when the officers were re-elected, as follows: President, W. C. Woodward, '98; vice president and treasurer, W. S. Parker, '99; secretary, Jessie Britt, '99.

In the evening the banquet to the new members of the association was given in the college library, which was very tastefully decorated. M. O. Pickett, Owen Maris, '03. "The Faculty," Clara Vaughan, '99; toasts being responded to as "The Ladies," W. C. Woodward, '98; "Mater and Alma Mater," Prof. R. W. Kelsey; "Foot-Grace Ruan, '01; response by prints," Prof. C. E. Lewis.

Capitola Conference.

The fifth annual Pacific Coast Conference of the Young Women's Christian Association was held at Capitola, California, May 15-25, 1903.

There were about three hundred girls enrolled, representing nearly all of the colleges of Washington, Oregon and California, and some from Idaho and Nevada.

The leaders of the conference were: Harriet Taylor, of Chicago; Miss Reynolds, the world's secretary; Miss Bertha Conde, of Chicago; Miss Louisa Shields, secretary of Northwest, Mrs. John R. Mott, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of New York; Dr. Brown, of Oakland; Mr. Welds, of Los Angeles, and Arthur Rugh, traveling secretary of the Student Volunteer movement. Then there were several returned missionaries: Miss Mary Mill, from India; Mrs. Smyth,

The underlying theme of the whole conference was "To Know Him." The conference hymn was

The mercy of God is an ocean divine,
A boundless and fathomless flood,
Launch out into the deep, cut away the shore line,
And be lost in the fullness of God. Etc.

A program similar to the following was carried out each of the ten days of the conference: The rising bell rang at 6:30, and from 7 o'clock until 7:30 was the quiet hour, and following this was breakfast. At 9 o'clock we convened for the Student Conference, which was led by Bertha Conde. In this we discussed problems and plans of association work. At 10 o'clock were two Bible classes. One was in the Life of Christ, taught by Mr. Welds, and the other in the Acts of the Apostles, taught by Dr. Brown.

Then at 11 o'clock Arthur Rugh had charge of the "Missionary Institute," in which we considered the needs and plans of missionary work in our colleges. At 11:45 Mrs. John R. Mott told us in a very clear and earnest way the condition and needs of China, India and Japan. Mrs. Mott has visited nearly every mission station in the world and thoroughly understands the conditions and needs of these. We had lunch at 12:30, and the afternoon was mostly given up to recreation. In the evening we had dinner at 6 o'clock, and Miss Conde conducted a Personal Workers class at 7:20. From 8 to 9 o'clock we listened to a platform address by one of the leaders. After that we had our delegation meetings.

Each service seemed to be a link in the chain of emphasizing the need of a life of complete consecration in order to really know Him. It would be impossible to tell the impressions and blessings received from the conference. Several girls consecrated their lives to work for their Master in foreign lands, and each girl went home with a deeper realization of the fathomless depths of God's love and of the need of "launching out where the full tides flow" and placing herself entirely under God's control if she would be a power for Him each day of her life.

The Pacific Northwest Student Conference.

The first annual conference of the Y. M. C. A. in the Pacific Northwest has come and gone. Seventy-six delegates from twenty-six institutions have left Gearhart Park, leaving their testimonies to echo the word "Success" for future conferences. For a long time the colleges of Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Montana have felt the need of this summer school. In the midst of the beautiful surroundings of Gearhart Park the first conference met to make its first traditions.

Nearly all the delegates arrived at Gearhart May 29th. In the evening the opening session was held. Like all conferences, the object is to promote Christian fellowship; to bring the different institutions into closer touch with problems of Y. M. C. A. work as a whole, and to raise the standard and policy of association plans of work. This was truly accomplished under the leadership of ten of the strongest men that are engaged in the work.

Every forenoon was given up to the conference work. At eight o'clock the missionary conference was held. This was conducted by Arthur Rugh, Traveling Secretary Student Volunteer Movement. Next after this session was the Bible study classes, of which there were three. They were taught by Prof. E. I. Bosworth, one of the greatest thinkers and speakers we have, and by Mr. Rodes and Reno Hutchinson, all of whom have exceptional ability to lead Bible classes. Colton, secretary international committee, talked during the third session of the forenoon upon the many association problems. The fourth and last session was given to platform addresses by Prof. Bosworth of Oberlin, Ohio, Colton, Dr. House, President Penrose of Whitman and Dr. Wilson of Seattle.

The afternoons were given entirely up to various athletic sports. Baseball was the most popular game, and all went out for a good time and plenty of exercise. After the afternoon's recreation, the life work meetings were held out on the beach at a spot that was dedicated especially for that meeting. These meetings were conducted by Arthur Rugh, a Student Volunteer, who will soon go into the missionary field in India.

The conference closed June 7th, and with it closed what was to the delegates a talk with God and with men who know and love Him. The time of the conference for the ensuing year will be changed for various reasons. Owing to the amount of work Cotton has, he will have, next year, an assistant secretary, who will work only in the Pacific Northwest.

Yes, the conference was a success. It has inspired men to do greater work. It has begun the traditions to be added to by future conferences, and has set them high.

A. KRAMIEN, '04.

At the business meeting of the C. A. L. O., held at McMinnville June 4th, the withdrawal of Dallas College from the League was accepted, Dallas having refused to remain in the League any longer. This situation is the result of the question about the basket ball championship, which was before the executive committee in February. The championship lay between Dallas and O. S. N. S. The committee decided to award the pennant to Monmouth. Dallas was so certain that the judgment of the committee was wrong and unfair that they have withdrawn from the league. This year only three schools contested in the field meet. Albany won so easily, and they lacked so much of paying expenses, that they have said they will probably not be in the meet next year if they have as good a team as they have had this year. That would leave only three schools to appear in the meet, and unless Monmouth does better than they did this year, it will amount to only a dual meet between P. C. and McMinnville.

Professor Robert Jones, an alumnus of P. C. of the class of '02, who has been professor of mathematics in Columbia College the past year, has been elected to fill a similar position in P. C. for next year. He came down to Newberg in time to take in all the Commencement features.

The Crescent extends a welcome to Prof. C. E. Lewis, who will be acting president next year, and to Prof. R. W. Jones, who has been elected professor of mathematics.

Commencement, with its diversity of pleasures and sorrows, has come again. Every day has been brimming over with things of unusual interest. The usual scenes of parting have been re-enacted. The satisfaction that accompanies the thought of work accomplished is shared by all. Vacation is welcomed with the erstwhile joy. The anticipation of going home makes glad those who have been away from home. The school year has been long and strenuous, and the change is heartily welcomed. The bustle and excitement of commencement has been here in all its fury.

Pacific College has to say good bye this year, not only to the class of '03, but to Professor Kelsey and President McGrew as well. President McGrew will be absent from us next year for the purpose of attending Harvard. We are glad to be assured that he will return to us the following year. Professor R. W. Kelsey severs his relations with P. C. at the close of this year. He has spent three years at P. C., and during that short time has rendered the school an inestimable service. While he has been here he has been thoroughly a Pacific College man, and has inspired life and energy into the whole student body. He is a man of untiring energy and one who is dead in earnest. His example of activity has been an education to the students in itself. His services to the school, and to the students individually, in oratory and debating, have evoked a sincere gratitude to him. We bid him good bye with regret; but since we must lose him, we wish him the greatest success in the work which he enters.

Local and Personal.

The Misses Bertha Cox, '00, and Grace Ruan, '01, are back, attending Commencement.

Miss Vesta Crozier's sister, Ruth, is visiting her for a few days and attending commencement.

Mr. Frank Rinehart, of Eastern Oregon, an uncle of Phil Rinehart, was a visitor at college May 25.

The Juniors almost felt slighted because the Seniors did not get off some jokes on them at their class day exercises.

Many old students are back for a few days. Among them we see Miss Gussie Crawford, Miss Lillian McConnell and Edwin Hatch.

Carroll Kirk, '01, assistant secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of Seattle, gave an interesting chapel talk a few days ago.

The last morning of chapel an interesting program was rendered. Each class contributed either a song or speech, and the faculty gave some very excellent advice to all.

Professor C. E. Lewis, who takes President McGrew's place in the school next year, arrived at Newberg on the 18th and attended Commencement. He will spend the summer at the California University in Berkeley.

Prof. F. K. Jones left on the 21st for Berkeley, where he will take a six weeks' course in the California University. Mrs. Douglas left a few days later for the same place, to take studies during the summer. Both of the professors will be back at P. C. next fall.
